

ROOSEVELT CALLS FOR EVERYONE TO JOIN HIS CAMPAIGN TONIGHT WITH APPEAL TO ALL U. S.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 7 (INS)—Back among the home folks where he began his political career 22 years ago, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today came to the end of his long and strenuous campaign for the presidency, supremely confident of a Democratic landslide in tomorrow's election.

The governor this afternoon will take a motor trip through several towns along the Hudson and tonight to Poughkeepsie will make his final appeal to the nation in a half-hour radio talk. He may take one last fling at President Hoover and the Republican leadership but his final speech will be mainly an appeal to "get out and vote."

COVERS 3000 MILES
Although he has carried his campaign from coast to coast through 38 states, covering upwards of 20,000 miles by train and automobile, Gov. Roosevelt insisted upon following the custom he established many years ago of visiting the home folks on the day before election.

"I couldn't leave this campaign without calling on my old friends and neighbors," he said when his advisors begged him to spend the day resting quietly at his home. Twenty-two years ago, Roosevelt, then out of Harvard, made his first campaign speech in the public square at Beacon as a candidate for the state senate. This afternoon on the same spot, he will speak as a candidate for the highest office within the gift of the American people.

VISIT TO NEWBURGH
From Beacon the governor will go to Newburgh for a brief speech to the main district in Kingston and Rhinebeck where he will return to Hyde Park. For 20 years on election eve, Gov. Roosevelt has been the chief speaker at a democratic rally in Columbus Hall Poughkeepsie, and tonight he will speak there not only for himself but for the state and local Democratic tickets.

Only that part of his speech in which he will deal with national issues and ask the people to be

Hoover Pin Easy on Stomach

New York, Nov. 7 (INS)—Reverend Truism, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., became fascinated with a Hoover pin which his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Truism, brought home with them after attending a Republican campaign meeting.

He thought it might taste well and put it in his mouth. By accident, he swallowed it.

Hospital doctors today revealed an X-ray examination showed the pin in the stomach of the young Republican, with the pin pointed upward. They believed it could be removed without injury to the boy.

sure and vote tomorrow will be broadcast over a nation-wide radio hookup.

Governor Roosevelt's home county of Dutchess long has been a Republican stronghold, but local Democratic leaders have snatched him that this year it will be found in the Democratic column.

CALLS ON WAR VETS

The governor will take time today to pay a brief visit to disabled World War veterans at the Castle Point Hospital.

After voting in Hyde Park Town Hall tomorrow the governor and Mrs. Roosevelt will motor to New York. Following another old custom, the governor will stop at North Tarrytown to pay "homage" to the firemen of that village.

He will receive election returns at Democratic national headquarters in New York tomorrow night and Wednesday he plans to return to Albany to prepare the state budget.

Moving here yesterday from New York the governor was greeted by more than a thousand of his neighbors and about 400 motorcyclists. In a brief speech he smilingly recalled his first attempt to ride a motorcycle.

"I started it all right but I couldn't stop the machine," he said. "I kept riding around and finally stopped myself when the gas tank ran dry."

Mr. Hearst's Views Are Perfectly Plain; Mr. Hoover Should Not Misstate Them for this, because Mr. Hearst got the idea directly from Mr. Hoover.

When Mr. Hoover was striving for the nomination for President four years ago, he met Mr. Hearst at Mr. Louis B. Mayer's house, in Santa Monica, and proceeded to outline to Mr. Hearst a great nation-wide program of public works, embracing the East, the West, the North and the South.

Mr. Hoover explained that the plan must be extensive, comprehensive and nation-wide in order to secure the support of all sections of the country.

The plan was inspiring and completely won Mr. Hearst's support for the plan and for Mr. Hoover's candidacy.

Mr. Hoover, when elected, abandoned the plan, because it contained items of flood control and water conservation to which he power trust objected, but Mr. Hearst still advocates the plan and believes that it would be doubly beneficial at this time, when employment is urgently needed by over eleven millions of our citizens.

MR. HOOVER accuses Mr. Hearst of being opposed to "The promotion of peace by means of the Kellogg Pact."

This is a childish accusation.

Mr. Hearst's objection to the Kellogg Pact is that it means nothing, as we have seen in the Chinese-Japanese conflict, unless it is supported by force of arms, and if it is supported by arms, it becomes, not a peace pact, but a WAR pact.

Mr. Hearst is an ardent advocate of peace, but primarily of peace for AMERICA.

Mr. Hearst urged that America stay out of the World War and received much opposition for that.

Mr. Hearst now urges that America stay out of all war pacts, or security pacts, or war commitments of any kind, or foreign entanglements of any kind, in order that peace and prosperity and happiness may prevail in our own dear country.

MR. HOOVER finally defends the Dawes transaction. The facts regarding the transaction are these:

Mr. Dawes was chairman of the Board of Directors of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation, appointed by Mr. Hoover.

On June 8, 1932, Mr. Dawes retired from the board and from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

On June 26, 1932, Mr. Dawes obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of which he had been the head, eighty million dollars for his bank.

This may have been an entirely proper proceeding, as Mr. Hoover declares.

Mr. Hearst merely said: "This may have been very good for Mr. Dawes and his bank, but unfortunately the rest of the community do not possess similar opportunities."

If Mr. Hearst is mistaken in this statement—If any of you folks who read this have enjoyed similar opportunities, write Mr. Hearst about it. He would like to hear of such cases.

MR. HEARST recently declared that Mr. Hoover's special friends, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Insull, of the Power Trust; Mr. Grundy, of the Depression; Tariff; Mr. Dawes, special and peculiar beneficiary of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Mr. Montagu Norman, alias Skinner, Governor of the Bank of England.

Mr. Hoover has defended one of his friends, Mr. Dawes, but he has not defended Mr. Samuel Insull.

But Mr. Hoover has defended promoters and speculators in times past and has stated in an article in the Mining Journal of London that money was better in their hands than in the hands "of the idiots who parted with it."

Unfortunately the hundreds of thousands of worthy people who originally held the money, but who lost their life savings in the collapse of Mr. Insull's swindling Power Trust, do not agree with Mr. Hoover.

Nor does Mr. Hearst agree with him. These poor plundered people were not "idiots." They were merely pitiful victims of conscienceless speculators and promoters.

It would have been much better for these worthy people, and much better for our country, if the money of which they have been robbed had remained in their hands.

Money in the hands of the people is what makes purchasing power, and what makes prosperity.

THE inability of Mr. Hoover to understand this primary principle is one of the things which have made his administration such a disastrous failure and which now make the man himself so utterly ineligible for re-election.

Mr. Roosevelt has pledged himself to give consideration to the FORGOTTEN MAN.

During Mr. Hoover's administration the Forgotten Man has been THE WHOLE AMERICAN PUBLIC.

sound credit if it ran more deeply into debt to the tune of two and a quarter billions, signing its name to pieces of yellow paper, bearing interest and promising to pay gold? And would its credit be forever ruined if it increased its indebtedness to two and a quarter billions, signing promises to pay, by signing pieces of green paper bearing "NO INTEREST?"

Would not saving $100,000,000 a year interest help government credit? It would surely help taxpayers.

Solemn high finance will say "ah, but if you print two billions of greenbacks, you may keep on printing twenty and a hundred millions. Then what?"

YOU MIGHT, but you might NOT. The assumption is that the country would not go crazy. If you drank a glass of beer, in the old days, you might keep on and drink a gallon of brandy. You might not.

The debt of the United States, all payable in gold, already exceeds in volume the total amount of gold in the world. There is nothing back of that debt but the nation's credit, the government's promise to pay, that you see in the humble one dollar greenback.

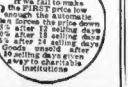

Nobody wants inflated currency. Nobody wants unearned money. But if what you have to offer is the nation's promise to pay, and that is ALL you offer, why insist on paying interest, when you can print the money and save $100,000,000 a year?

If Uncle Sam prints the money it will cost him absolutely nothing, in interest, not a cent more than it would to pay the money years hence. And if he did print and distribute the money, and the veterans soon take it to the stores in every city, town and village in the country? Would those few dollars be scattered like gentle rain, fertilizing prosperity everywhere, without causing any "currency flood?"

These questions are asked in good faith, by one who knows that he knows nothing about money, and believes that high finance knows exactly as much. It is not the business of this column to tell Congress what to do about the bonus or anything else.

It may, however, be remarked that those few dollars will grow by irrigation, you must put the water at the roots. You cannot have been well said, "make a tree prosperous by watering the top branches only without irrigating the roots."

To make prosperity grow you must put money into the pockets of those that will spend it. Putting it in some financial reservoir and hoping that it will shake out and reach the spender is folly.

THE HAMPSHIRE RUSHES DECISION ON PAUPER POPE

BALEFUL FATE OF HUNDREDS AT STAKE

Officials of 150 Townships to Rule Today on Issue That May Sway Election

By ARTHUR J. QUINN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 7.—The fate of the "pauper" voter throughout the entire State of New Hampshire was at stake today, as voting supervisors in over 150 townships gathered in special meetings to decide whether the paupers in their communities will be allowed to take part in tomorrow's elections.

Particular interest is being shown in the special meetings of Goffstown, in Merrimack County, in Seabrook and Milford, in Hillsborough County, where there appears to be more unemployment and distress than in other towns throughout the state.

FINAL PLEA TODAY

In Goffstown, where until last Saturday it appeared that the paupers would be barred at the polls reports were current that the check list supervisors had relented and would vote unanimously to allow more than 350 persons who are to be affected by the decision to cast their ballots tomorrow.

Realizing the importance of agency towards those who could be barred tomorrow leaders of the Democratic party throughout the state, are making a final appeal to the check list supervisors, by radio today, to be liberal minded when they meet in their special sessions on the question, today and tonight.

APPEALS ON RADIO

The hours set for today's radio appeals for those threatened with disenfranchisement are from 12 noon and 1 o'clock and between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening.

The radio broadcasts are timed for the noonday or evening meal hours so that supervisors who have their meetings scheduled for the afternoon and evening are more likely to be reached on the radio at meal times than during the working hours. Those who have planned the broadcast feel that information which is to be given to the supervisors regarding the pauper law and the possibility of evading it tomorrow will swing them in favor of liberalism and leniency for the unfortunate victims of unemployment.

BOTH SIDES NEED VOTES

So close is the race between the two parties it would appear that both sides need every vote. It is the opinion of the Democratic party that there are more persons in their flock who have been affected by the adverse economic conditions than members of the other party.

Perhaps the most unfortunate victims of the law, as it stands today, are aged persons who can no longer work and have been forced to seek assistance from their towns or their families. There are approximately 120 persons receiving aid in the state.

Although no official figures are available at this time as to the number who have been aided and those not entitled to vote, a conservative estimate of the number of unemployed has been set by leaders of both parties at 7000 in the townships of the state.

"Boston Billy" Asks for Life Sentence

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP).—Boston Billy Williams, gang leader and former pal of Arthur Barker, jewel thief, wants to be sentenced, according to his attorney, to life imprisonment instead of serving the 30 years he is now in for. Boston Billy's desire to fight for the life sentence came after study of the new parole laws revealed that he would be eligible to gain his freedom within 15 to 20 years as a lifer.

RAINY ELECTION DAY IN EAST

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP).—Voters in most of the eastern states may need umbrellas tomorrow but fair weather was the general forecast west of the Mississippi River.

Except for a narrow belt along the Atlantic coast extending from North Carolina to Connecticut, rain was the prediction for the entire South, New England and the territory extending to the Mississippi.

It was said, however, that "only" all-day rains were unlikely in any section. In the West, Washington and Oregon and Minnesota and Wisconsin were threatened with fog weather, with a possibility that snow would fall in the latter two states.

NATION-WIDE POLL REVEALS BIG MAJORITY FOR REPEAL

QUICK ACTION ON SALES TAX ALSO SURE

Cross-Section of Congress Candidates Bares Overwhelming Wet Sentiment

By FRASER EDWARDS

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—A poll of more than one-third of all candidates for Congress, conducted by the Hearst newspapers, including the Boston Evening American, in 22 states, reveals an overwhelming majority for outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and sentiment divided on the enactment of the sales tax.

This representative cross-section of opinion among some 600 congressional candidates indicates that both the vital issues will be given prompt attention by Congress.

MAJORITY FOR REPEAL

Out of a total of 355 candidates for the Senate and House queried on repeal of the prohibition amendment, 239 replied they would vote for a resolution submitting that straight question in the states. This represents a majority of 215 in the poll.

Only 21 declared themselves unqualified "drys."

Other answers varied as follows:

For recommitment to the House for reconsideration with qualifications, such as the Republican plank, 10 declared "drys."

Declining to state 10.

FOR QUICK MODIFICATION

Numerous candidates stated they would vote for immediate modification of the Volstead act to lighten beer and light wines, although the question was not submitted in the poll.

A total of 377 candidates was asked their position on the enactment of a sales tax similar to that declared in the House at the last session and 147 declared in favor of it.

The remaining 330 candidates in this poll were divided as follows: Against the sales tax, 15; for it with qualifications, 27; against it with qualifications, 12; declining to state, 10; and evasive, 7.

The replies by state are as follows:

ARIZONA

For repeal of the 18th Amendment—For repeal, 1; declined to state, 1.

CALIFORNIA

For repeal of the 18th Amendment—For repeal, 21; against, 11; recommitment, 2; undecided, 1; declined to state, 1.

To enact sales tax—For, 23; against, 1; with qualifications, 1; declined to state, 1; evasive, 1.

CONNECTICUT

For repeal of the 18th Amendment—For repeal, 13; against, 2; recommitment, 1; declined to state, 1; evasive, 1.

To enact sales tax—For, 2; against, 2; for with qualifications, 1.

'Erbie and 'Is Playmates

As the campaign draws to a close 'Erbie's manager, Sandy, is asking several well-known residents of Mother Goose Town for their views regarding 'Erbie's prospects. The unanimous opinion of these high authorities is that 'Erbie's success is assured. They ought to know. They are several hundred years old, though some of them look rather young.

Favorable telegrams have also been received from Jack Spratt who could eat no fat, Little Tommy Tittlemouse, the Three Wise Men of Gotham, who went to sea in a bowl, and other good judges.

At the close of the reception the whole company will join in the following cheerful refrain—

'Enry, meeny, miny, mo—
'Erbi'll give us jobs and dough—
That is, maybe—we don't know—
'Enry, meeny, miny, mo."

And, unless something unforeseen occurs, it's—

POPULAR DIRECT PRIMARY IS IN DANGER

The popular direct primary, which discarded the old convention system of horse-picked candidates, is in danger.

The question of breaking down this law through a change in its structure, whereby conventions would be held in advance of the primary to endorse candidates, is the primary to endorse candidates, dictated by the party machines.

There are twenty-five candidates for the office of Governor in Rhode Island.

On the question of a national sales tax to lift the burden of discrimination and high taxes, replies came from 27 candidates. Twenty-one of them favor the sales tax and six oppose.

Following is a chart which shows their attitudes. The letters NR mean "no reply."

DOLE CUT URGED FOR BRITAIN

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Important changes in the administration of unemployment insurance relief were recommended today by the Royal Commission after a year of study.

It is based on the assumption of £3,000,000, and proposes a reduction of about £12,000,000 in unemployment expenditures.

Creation of the means test is recommended and it is suggested a statutory commission be created as an advisory body to keep the unemployment problem out of political considerations.

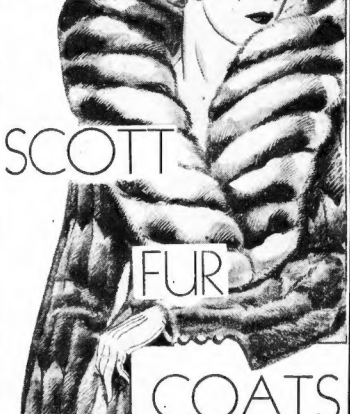

It was recommended also that boys of 14 become contributing to the unemployment insurance scheme. The present minimum age is 16.

Simultaneously it was announced in the House of Commons that the number of unemployed receiving aid on Nov. 2 was 2,710,841. On Sept. 26 the number on the dole was 2,858,011.

RADIO PRIEST IN ATTACK ON RUBBER CASH

Continuing his denunciation of revaluation of the gold standard, Father Charles E. Coughlin, famous radio priest, declared this course must be taken to avert repudiating our debt in his regular weekly talk over a nationwide network.

Father Coughlin played as cowardly the politicians who refused to face the situation and declared the present inflated value of 117 credit dollars to one gold dollar in the U. S. treasury was nothing more than "rubber money."

Picking up the subject where it had been left in his discussion last week, Father Coughlin went into specific detail and charged that the practical workings of the gold standard have been almost entirely destroyed.

"Those who have hoarded of having retained the old standard in practical operation since 1918 flaunted in the face of the American people the looting of banks, the stagnation of industry, unemployment and the tears of the starving who have been offered up as victims on the altar of infidelity, inactivity and conservatism," Father Coughlin declared.

"We are like the little boy who has been sentenced to carry the Empire State building from Manhattan Island to Boston Common," he continued.

"There is only one solution to our present miseries. Either revaluation of the gold standard or an even debt repudiation, redistribution and starvation."

His talk also included the answers to a number of questions sent by listeners regarding his talk of last week on the same subject.

GLASSFORD FLAYS BOMBING OF VETERANS

'President Had Needy Heroes Gassed'

In the best seven articles in his column of the outrageous treatment accorded the bonus army in Washington, General Glassford blames the deplorable episode on the blunders of the Hoover administration, and relates how the rejection of the war veterans and their families was really a political plot. The eighth article in the series is herewith presented.

By BRIG. GEN. FELHAM D. GLASSFORD

Former Chief of Police of the District of Columbia

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Washington, Nov. 7.—Armed with the most modern implements of warfare, tear gas, tanks and machine guns, the peacetime army of the present commander-in-chief, Herbert Hoover, on July 28 drove from the national capital at the point of the bayonet, the unarmed remnants of the destitute army of Woodrow Wilson.

Vexillation and fear combined with political expediency and ambition to produce the tragedy of Anconia. An episode without parallel in American history was written into the country's records and two graves in Arlington must forever commemorate a deed of shame.

As I have already stated, the decision to use the United States army against the destitute veterans was reached long before July 28.

HOOPER WAS WARNED

Weeks before, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, had told me the soldiers were ready to move whenever President Hoover issued the order. The newspapers of July 27 and the morning of July 28 reported conferences, indicating the use of troops, had been held between Secretary of War Hittler, President Hoover, Gen. MacArthur and other high officials.

An excuse for their use was needed. This the administration had carefully provided by adopting a policy against which I had fought and warned every high official with whom I came in contact. Through high officials close to the chief executive I had warned President Hoover and failed to warn him personally only because he was convinced he would not receive me.

The veterans had behaved admirably throughout the weeks they were camped in Washington. They had no plan. Most of them had no home to which to go. They had money.

Patience was needed in handling them. Sympathetic help could do more with them than any other course. Force would anger them and outrage the country. All this I had set forth in the authorities. It was ignored. Tragically was the inevitable result.

THEN BRICKS FLY

Let us examine the events as they actually transpired at this time. One building in the Pennsylvania ave. cantonment, and an area 25 yards square, had been cleared without difficulty and roped off.

Thousands of veterans and operators had assembled in the vicinity. Some one in the crowd threw a brick; others followed. For three or four minutes bricks flew fast. A police officer beside me was struck on the head and knocked unconscious.

I stepped between the lines, held up my hands and called for a cessation of the fight. Hostilities stopped. Hundreds of veterans who had not participated advanced with their arms upraised, calling to the disaffected few "stop fighting."

Now more than 50 veterans had participated. The great mass deplored the outbreak. A veteran who tore off my badge was mobbed by his own companions.

No stores had been broken into. There had been no depredations. No one, except those in high authority, pretended to areas danger.

An hour after the brick fight a momentary and isolated fracas occurred in which two veterans were fatally shot in an attack upon a small group of police. There was no possible justification for President Hoover's statement in which he said:

"In order to put an end to this rising and defiance of civil authority, I have asked the army to assist the district authorities to restore order."

When that statement was issued complete order prevailed and the police had full control of the situation. Quiet continued for more than three hours between this fatal fracas and the arrival of soldiers.

DIDN'T WANT TROOPS

Troops had been dispatched prior to this last outbreak. Cavalry from Fort Myer, later used in the action, was observed and reported by my force assembled in the elipse back of the Treasury.

Strenuous efforts have been made by the administration to make it appear that I called for troops. I did not. I knew nothing about the troops having been called for until told by a newspaper man.

I had proceeded by motorcycle to the elipse back and found cavalry and tanks there awaiting the arrival of infantry from Fort Washington. Gen. MacArthur was in full uniform.

"We are going to break the back of the B. E. F.," he said, "and then clean out the other two big camps. The operation will be conclusive. It will all be done tonight."

Troops arrived about 5:30 p. m.—not as President Hoover stated, "to assist the district authorities to restore order," but to destroy the B. E. F. and for no other reason or purpose.

Cavalry, infantry and tanks paraded. A machine gun troop went through the drill of dismounting and setting up machine guns, then returning them to the barrels of pack horses. This was to let the veterans visualize the force arrayed against them and to discourage resistance.

It was obvious they had no idea of that kind. On the contrary, they cheered the troops when they appeared, and the cheers were in good faith, given by one set of bullets for another.

LAUGHTER AND HUMORS

A wave of very young infantrymen moved forward and were received by the seasoned veterans with cheers and laughter. The bonus boys refused to take the situation seriously.

The soldiers pushed the veterans and the veterans pushed the soldiers. No headway was being made. A sharp order, and the infantry withdrew to the street. Gas masks were put on and the men returned to the attack, hurling tear gas bombs. It was not a game.

After the Pennsylvania ave. hills were cleared, night had fallen. The troops moved on the area where the veterans occupied four square blocks of vacant lots and dilapidated buildings. Then followed the dramatic evaluation and burning of Camp Marks on Anacostia flat, viewed by thousands.

There was, so far as my knowledge goes, no brutality on the part of the soldiers. They obeyed orders and carried out a plan of operation carefully formulated.

But the charge of brutality must be leveled against the Hoover administration's attempt to make political capital out of hunger, misery and despair.

Tomorrow, Gen. Glassford concludes his dramatic series.

LIBBY HOLMAN TO LEARN FATE

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 7.—Libby Holman's legal fate in connection with the death of her boy husband, Smith Reynolds, after a court inquiry parts last July 8, will be decided when superior court opens here Wednesday, it was announced today.

Solicitor Carlisle Higgins, who holds indictments charging Libby Holman and Reynolds' pal, Ab Walker, with his murder, said he probably will make "an important announcement" at the opening of court.

It is known that the Reynolds tobacco dynasty is bringing powerful pressure on Higgins to drop the indictments on Wednesday to obviate the hearing of Libby's and Smith's private lives before a jury.

Higgins, who declared he has not made up his mind whether to try Libby or free her, added that there would be no room on the court calendar for the Holman trial until Nov. 21.

Agony From Burns Drove Him to Suicide

Houston, Nov. 7.—Intense agony from burns he suffered in fighting a blaze in his shoe shop led Joseph Burbank, 50, to commit suicide, investigators revealed today.

Burbank was found dead in a room above his burning shop. A jury verdict was drawn quickly around his neck, and his hands and face were burned. The fire had not reached that section of the building.

Tricky Fire Alarm Give Woburn a Scare

Woburn residents were thrown into grave alarm yesterday morning when five alarms of fire, three from Box 55 and two from Box 23, both in the heart of the industrial district, sounded in rapid succession. All apparatus from Woburn as well as apparatus from surrounding towns piled into the district.

The total damage, however, was to a $10 fire in an auto, caused by short-circuit. Only one alarm was pulled for the fire but something went wrong with the transmitter and the other four alarms came in without being sounded by human hands.

AUTO DEATHS ON INCREASE

The Halloween celebration and several rainy days combined to cause auto fatalities and numerous accidents, according to the weekly report of Registrar Morgan T. Ryan.

The total of 23 adults and three children compares with a total of 29 deaths reported in the first week of November last year, the registrar said. He also pointed out the ruthless slaughter of pedestrians, three being run down near street cars and buses and one being a hit-and-run victim. The total fatalities to date this year are 877 as compared with 718 to the same date last year.

The registrar reported 1374 licenses suspended or revoked. Of these 111 were for drunken driving and 800 for insurance cancellations.

ROOSEVELT AND GARNER FOR NORTH IN THE BALLOT

The Massachusetts ballot this year is much simpler than in previous presidential years when it carried the names of the electors in each party. In this state it is now possible to vote directly for Roosevelt and Garner or "Hoover and Curtis" and the two national candidates of any other party.

A cross marked on the ballot opposite the words "Roosevelt and Garner" means a vote for the Democratic national ticket, and the same is true of the other pairs of candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency.

It is not possible in this state however, to vote a straight ticket by a single cross.

When voting for President and Vice-President the voter must make a cross opposite his choice for Governor, then another cross for lieutenant-governor, and so on down the ticket.

The parties are in different order in each group. For example, the Communist party candidates lead the presidential list, with the Republican pair second.

There are three referenda, two of them being and confounding, but all have been thoroughly explained in a pamphlet sent out by the secretary of state and in the press.

Church Honors Veterans of War

The names of 203 members of the congregation of the Second Church in Dorchester, who served in the war, have been inscribed on a bronze tablet which was unveiled with appropriate exercises.

The Rev. Andrew Richard, pastor, presided, those present and Commander William Keeney of the Marine Corps, Dr. G. A. R., unveiled the tablet.

ROOSEVELT SWEEP SEEN

ization for the first time in its history has voted, in convention assembled, to endorse Ely. This G. O. P. organization characterizes the governor's administration as "progressive, humane, and disinterested."

"One factor which weighed heavily in the determination of the attitude of this organization," the open letter of endorsement read, "was that the public arts and judicial appointments of the past two years appear to be those of an intelligent leader, rather than of a professional politician."

LABOR VOTE SOLID

Further discouragement for the Republican cause lies in the lineup of organized labor for the Democratic national and state candidates, the first united support of this kind since the election of Gov. William L. Douglas.

Also the defections, because of the unsatisfactory Republican national plank on prohibition, of prominent vet. Republicans, such as Gen. Francis Peabody and Mr. Joseph E. Walker of Chestnut Hill, strengthen the case for the Democratic speaker of the House.

Probably no President in this generation received the sealings of friendship laid to President Hoover at the big rally in Faneuil Hall by Arthur F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and Robert Feckner, vice-president of the International Machinists Union, and officials of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor and the Boston Central Labor Union.

The Democrats, in addition to carrying the state for Roosevelt and Ely and the state ticket, have strong hopes not only for the re-election of their four present congressmen, Granfield H. Longmire, McCormack of South Boston, Douglas of East Boston, and Conner of Lynn, but for the election of four others, and possibly five, which would give them nine of the 15 members.

Those that are looked upon as having the best chance to break through outside of the present strength of four are former Mayor M. Fred O'Connell of Fitchburg, Arthur D. Healey of Cambridge, former Mayor Andrew J. McGraw of Taunton, Thomas H. Buckley of Abington, and John J. Crehan of Boston.

O'Connell is running against Congressman M. F. Foss of Fitchburg. Healey is in new district formerly represented by Congressman Charles Underhill, and is making his opponent Underhill's secretary, George H. Norton, a formidable foe. Healey is making a hard fight against Congressman George Rogers Tinkham.

McGraw is giving Congressman Joseph W. Martin the fight of his life.

HURLEY OUT FRONT

Former Congressman Frederick B. Dietrich, of Cambridge, another Democratic aspirant for Washington, has attracted much attention to his fight against Congressman Robert L. Taylor of Woburn, whose friendship in the past with the cause of prohibition has caused the wrath of the anti-prohibitionists in his district.

Because the district, as re-aid, speaking for Roosevelt and Ely at rallies in Everett and Revere, made the point that in the reorganization of the great railroads of the nation, the New England roads will be better protected through Governor Ely, under the incoming Democratic regime in Washington, than under Youngman.

The charge that Hoover politically was that President Hoover is defeated in Massachusetts, where the state is divided ships and work from Boston have yard to Portsmouth.

George H. Moore, equally despondent, said there is no chance for Charles H. McGuire, former chairman of the Democratic state committee.

He says that 75 mechanics were laid off last week at Charleston and 400 more are scheduled to go at the end of the present month.

Betting Odds Rise to 6 to 1 on Roosevelt to Win

An 11-hour survey of 26 cities by betting commissioners has indicated odds on Roosevelt to 6 to 1, according to dispatches from New York in Boston commission.

Lebanon is 7 to 1 in the next governor of New York and Roosevelt is even money to carry 38 states. The betting is even money that Hoover does not carry 11 states.

One bet of $7500 was reported offered that Roosevelt carries the state of New York by 350,000. The New York Daily News after a two-month town-to-town straw vote campaign, says Roosevelt will carry the state by 800,000.

Following is a table of the 45 states showing the actual bets in the national betting market on each state. It was furnished by W. L. Darnell & Co., 22 Broadway. The table:

Norman Thomas Sees Big Socialist Vote

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7. (AP)—Presidential Candidate Norman Thomas said today as he toured a conservative campaign station.

He did not predict victory for himself but did say that the Socialist party will poll a greater vote than ever before.

The young woman told police she was walking home. When he began to chase her she freed her dog from its leash, dropped all her bundles and threw off her coat in an effort to escape his grasp.

Arresting homes she called the police. Dunbar was given a two months suspended sentence.

MAN SEIZED IN WOMAN CHASE

Concord, N. H., Nov. 6.—The story of a three-mile chase through fields and woods and over a mountain, as told by Mrs. Daisy Hayes, resulted in the arrest of Ray Dunbar of Bradford, Vt., on a charge of disorderly conduct.

That the charge was not more serious in due police say, to the fact that Mrs. Hayes, coming 22-year-old blonde, ran much faster than her pursuer.

The young woman told police she was walking home. When he began to chase her she freed her dog from its leash, dropped all her bundles and threw off her coat in an effort to escape his grasp.

Arresting homes she called the police. Dunbar was given a two months suspended sentence.

Herb Concedes 14 States to Roosevelt

New York, Nov. 7. (AP)—United States Senator Phil S. Sweeney of Rhode Island, eastern campaign manager for the Republican national committee, today conceded 14 states to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He said, Democratic presidential nominee. The states conceded are Arizona, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Tennessee, the 10 states of the "Solid South."

Herb's Promises Now I. O. U.'s

By Arthur "BUGS" BAER

The late William Lickay always wondered who made the clothes that tailored put in their windows.

And we wonder who wrote the speeches that Mr. Hoover put on the air.

Herbie is never that way before. In 1924 he promised prosperity, two chickens in every egg and the same number of cars as every tin-pipe.

But in 1932 he is the face of every window of a haunted house.

He is hallooing there ain't no Santa Claus. He is predicting calamity, disaster and ruin.

When it comes to galloping up and down a 25 miles of glass Herbie is the real kitten on the keys.

Well, we will make a job for Herbie after tomorrow. He can be master of sounds for the Four Moosmen.

Based on these returns, minimum majority estimates of the vote to be won tomorrow have been shown on the basis of the total presidential vote of each state in 1928.

In figuring these estimates, not only were the total poll ballots for Roosevelt but also the division of those ballots as between men and women, as to how Granger came through! We make Granger of the kind of tobacco that smokes best in a pipe. It's the way it's made—Wellman's Method—that makes Granger taste so good. And it removes the tobacco gums that might otherwise clog your pipe. Granger burns to a clean dry ash; never gums a pipe.

THIS IS LIFE

In Which a Professor Joins the Ranks of the Political Prophets
—By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party!

That is the sentence which one automatically writes when he buys a new typewriter, or puts on a new typewriter ribbon. Why I do not know. It is not a particularly good sentence for the purpose. It is not even very good as a test sentence for speed. It is not difficult. It lacks b, j, k, q, u, v, x, and z.

The fact that we use it reveals, probably, a basic interest in party politics in the average American. Our political theorists may congratulate themselves that there are more of us who are independent than ever before, that is, mavericks on whom the party brand has worn thin. Our radicals may promise us that this year at least there will be a protest or third party vote which will mean something.

But, all theory notwithstanding, all the polls show that the old two party system—even if the professors of politics insist that there isn't a nickel's worth of difference between the two still holds most of our adult population to its allegiance.

Forecasts First, Then Alibis

Today is the day of the last hopes and prophecies. The Republicans are valiantly holding out for the same precious triumph states that will put Mr. Hoover over the top and Mr. Feltz in still claiming everything in sight, including New England and New Jersey. And the dopests are stirring the dope, in spite of the fact that recent book on straw votes informs us that the so-called journalist political expert usually runs a very bad second to the dopests inside the organization. The straw vote editors are more canny and cagey. The Literary Digest, for instance, in telling that its poll gives all the New England states to Mr. Hoover, reminds us that it did the same thing in 1928 and was very badly fooled on two of the states.

Football and boxing match writers apparently get a lot of fun out of picking the winners in advance and then pulling persuasive alibis afterwards. Just for the fun of it we might do the same ourselves.

Mr. Roosevelt will win easily but he will not get all the states Mr. Farley claims for him. About 400 electoral votes. Mr. Hoover will not get his thirteen states—or if he does they will not be the right thirteen—but he will get more states and a larger popular vote than anyone would have thought possible one year ago or six months ago. His recent campaign has undoubtedly been very impressive to timid people and conservative people, no matter how dissatisfied they are.

Norman Thomas will not get a large vote but it will not be by any means the 5,000,000 his sympathizers were claiming six months ago. The striking thing about the Socialist vote will be not its large size but its comparatively small size, considering the seriousness of the depression, the wide-spread dissatisfaction and the undoubted inclination to radicalism.

The vote of the Prohibitionists and the Communists will be ridiculous.

The total vote will beat that cast in 1928, which, in turn, was the largest to date. The registration figures to date seem to make that almost certain—unless there is widespread bad weather.

Women Stand-Patters in Politics

The chief increase in the Hoover vote will come from the women, who always incline to be stand-patters in politics. I am safe in saying this because there is no way really of telling.

Massachusetts—and here my guess is no worse than any body's and it is soggy, slippery ground at best—will get Republican by a slight margin so far as the presidency is concerned.

But the state offices will go to Governor Ely and Mr. Bacon and to the present incumbents. (About the Governor's council I haven't even a guess).

The Congress will be Democratic and wetter than at present, but not so safely yet as to make repeal of prohibition quick and easy.

Quick, Abaddon! Take away the crystal, put out the candles and the incense, open the windows, and bring me something to drink. The power has left me!

The only thing which might increase the Socialist vote over what I suspect it will be in the astonishing exhibition staged by both candidates these last two weeks. Their original ideas have long been exhausted. They have been reduced to the "tu quoque," meaning "you're another," to accusations of falsifying the record, misquoting each other and of exalting themselves, and to glittering generalities, including Mr. Roosevelt's great oratorical effort on the "four horsemen of the depression," which had a certain apocalyptic grandeur about it but which wasn't really as useful as a series of specific propositions on the tariff, for instance.

Lincoln Pica Won't Bear Scrutiny

On the other hand, Mr. Hoover's last trump he can play seems to be the old never-failing Republican reliance on Abraham Lincoln.

"Abraham Lincoln's body lies a-mouldering in the grave, but his soul seems to be copyrighted by the Republican National Committee."

The plea that Mr. Hoover's position in the depression is exactly like Lincoln's in the third year of the Civil War is just specious enough and emotional enough to win a lot of votes. But it won't bear scrutiny. Lincoln's enemies were determined to stop the war and let the South go its own way. Mr. Hoover's opponents can be counted on continuing waging war on the depression in their own way, which almost certainly will involve no radical departure from what Mr. Hoover calls "the American system" and arrogates to the Republicans. Whoever wins, the depression will take its course.

The last few weeks have shown us several things. That Mr. Hoover can use every device, including the discredited ones, of the vote-catcher, when he must. That he has boomed his stock considerably. That Mr. Roosevelt had the election won three months ago and could have taken it considerably more easily. And that he is without doubt a physical marvel. Even the voice shows few signs of wear and tear.

There is obviously not a shadow of an excuse left for voting against him on the ground that he is not physically competent.

BEACON HILL

ONE OF THE NICEST presentation parties you could imagine was that of the two Irving sisters in Needham on Saturday night.

The beautiful country house of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Irving is a delightful place for large and hospitable affairs. . . the main hall which extends upward for two stories conducive to that lovely old phrase "and the rafters rang with laughter" . . . the narrow balcony which rambles along the second story and from which all of the bedrooms lead in a delightfully intimate manner . . . the spacious ground floor rooms.

It was on this same balcony that the older members of Saturday evening's party gathered to gaze down into the living rooms at the gay picture below as the young friends of the Messrs Irving danced in their honor.

Snowy Velvet Gown

THE STAIRCASE DOWN was entwined with smilax and festooned with green . . . before a tapestry of blossoms Miss Frances in a snowy velvet trimmed with soft white fur and her younger sister Miss Mary in robin's egg blue silk stood with their beautiful mothers, Mrs. Irving, to entertain hundreds of friends and relatives.

Mrs. Irving's gown was of autumn brown lace, very modish and becoming.

Among the sister debutantes who were in their best bid-and-tuckers was Leonora Kimball, flame colored crepe trimmed with fur setting off her blonde tresses.

Of a more restrained type but equally blonde and lovely was Frances Proctor attired in a queer-colored green satin smart, no rod.

Marian Rizzo wore a becoming expel model in the popular blue tones . . . and Ruth Brooks, who is a natural blonde and very pretty, was enchanting in scarlet.

Pretty and brunette Rosamond Emerson attempted to appear dignified in the fashionable cut black velvet . . . her features are so winsome and her eyes so merry, she can only succeed in looking alluring.

The so-very-popular Anne deCormus, whose debut takes place on the 25th of this month, was the center of a group of swains.

Sally Waters in Dark Blue Chiffon

PRETTY SALLY WATERS WHO seems to excite enthusiasm whenever we mention her name was present in a dark blue chiffon, almost the shade of her raven-black hair.

Francess Pommer, whose presentation was last week, wore black velvet very becomingly.

Her cousin, Molly Harrison, one of the prettiest of last season's bouquet of buds, was sweet in green satin.

Others among the last year's group whom we remember was Eleanor Stephenson, in white crepe with the fashionable "roll" trimming . . . and Sally Locke, who was stunning in chartreuse green on long and slender lines.

Miss Mary Ballard, classmate of Mistress Mary's at Vassar College, was a house guest over the festivities.

We saw Nathalie Appleton, Jane Bogardus, Catherine Wood, Emily Conant, Elizabeth Mixer, Madeline Powers, Luc Rantoul and scores of other popular girls dancing in the beautifully paneled rooms from which old portraits of the Irving ancestors gazed down upon the merry throng.

The large superb dinner was served in the dining room hung with crimson brocade to the strains of Billy somebody-or-other's orchestra.

We heard that Mr. and Mrs. William Van Dyke (Helen Buttrick) is visiting her sister and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Stedman Buttrick, Jr., in Concord for a while.

That Mr. William Faversham's grandmother, who was the mother of the late Julia Opp, famous actress and idol of New York in her day, Mrs. William Opp is visiting him and his charming wife, the former Sally Shaw, for a few weeks.

You did know that the RKO studios are making a talkie of the novel Little Women and have been out to Concord to photograph and measure the original Louisa May Alcott house so that the "shots" may be authentic.

Special Supper at Junior League

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE WILL SERVE a special buffet supper for members and their guests from 7 until 8:30 o'clock on election night, Tuesday, November 8.

Society seems to be as excited over the Rodeo as over the horse show . . . we saw scores of well-known faces screaming and shouting as the exciting fates were executed in the most daring manner on Friday night.

The indefatigable Edith Seabury was with a gay crowd . . . and how this lovely deb keeps up the pace is a miracle.

Dorothy Lawrence, Junior League president and one of the most popular girls in town, found the evening thrilling.

WE nearly died with excitement but were so fascinated we could not take our eyes away from the ring for a moment.

That charming lady who is now holding an exhibit at the Boston Art Club in memory of her late husband, Mr. George C. Lee, is one of Boston's social stars. The exhibit opened Wednesday afternoon with a special, only at high noon for the family and intimate friends.

Mr. Lee was widely known as a social man and an art collector. His beautiful collection of paintings, which he had gathered together over a long period of years, is now being shown to the public. The exhibit is a tribute to his memory and to his love of art.

Mr. Lee's collection includes works by many of the great masters of the 19th and 20th centuries. The exhibit is a real treat for art lovers and a fine example of the social and cultural life of Boston.

Mr. Lee's collection is a true reflection of his personality and his taste. It is a collection that will be treasured for many years to come.

DON'T VOTE BLIND—STUDY THIS SAMPLE BALLOT

In accordance with our long established custom, we print the above sample ballot to aid voters who seek guidance. The advisory ballot presents our choice on the various propositions and candidates—and is the result of a careful study of each and every issue. Take the ballot with you to the polls tomorrow. And after you have voted hand it to your neighbor without compliments and a chicken in every pot.

THE BOYS GOT TO FIGURING
(Lamer, Mr. Democrat)

A crowd of perhaps a dozen Monday evening in a well-lit room brought up the subject of craps. One of the boys told of a game his dad was in where a fellow "threw" 28 times in a row, figuring on the basis of a 28-cent shot, leaving his money on the table and letting it double 28 times. They figured they would have over nine million dollars.

Onward and upward—
"Forteen Great Ideas, dressed in lion's costume, are included in the cast of Cecil De-Mille's spectacle, 'Sign of the Cross'."

And most people would rather go wrong than not have anything to talk about.

Another pal that's not to be taken home "I got that tree all better."

"America," says aviation magazine, "has more air-minded women than any country in the world." That's right. They give their men the air.

But first of all the football dips. That I would love to wreck. Is he who sits behind and drops his kicking down my neck.

Roosevelt and Ely—A Winning Ticket

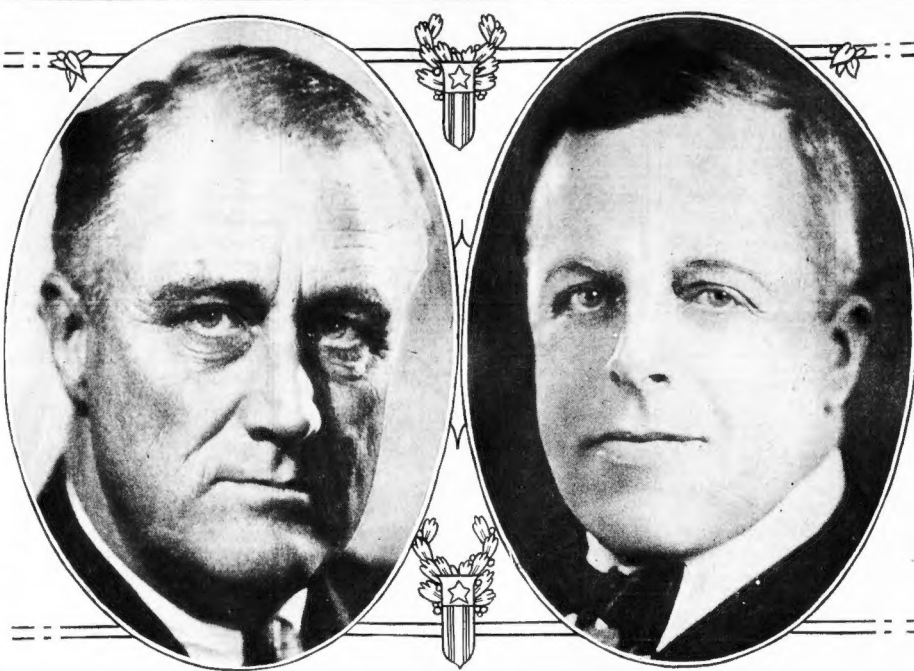

THE Nation decides tomorrow whether it wishes four more years of the same or whether it wants a change.

More than 40,000,000 Americans will vote. The victor will be either Herbert Hoover, who stands for things as they are, or Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who stands for a new deal. Every indication points to an overwhelming demand for a new deal. The Evening American believes that the new deal that is coming means happier times for everybody, and a decided hastening of the end of the depression.

MASSACHUSETTS has its opportunity tomorrow to take its place in the ranks of the States which will roll up a tremendous plurality for Mr. Roosevelt and this new deal. The citizens of this Commonwealth have suffered with the rest of the Nation the effects of the depression, of mismanagement by the administration now in power. The one way to register protest against this mismanagement and to make certain of a new order of things is to cast a great vote of protest tomorrow, an overwhelming demand for a new deal.

That the State may be in complete harmony with the national administration that is to be, Massachusetts should and will re-elect Governor Joseph B. Ely, Lieutenant-Governor John E. Swift, State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, and the rest of the State ticket. If the citizens of the State are sincere in their announced desire for repeal of prohibition and for immediate beer and light wine—and for good service as well—they will go down the line for the Democratic candidates for Congress.

EACH of these men is pledged, four square, to the Democratic platform calling for repeal and immediate revocation of the Volstead act. Their pledge is in direct contrast to the Republican platform, which is an out-and-out straddle, promising all things to the wets and all things to the dries at one time. The one way to insure action on prohibition is to vote for Democratic congressional candidates. This is the opportunity that advocates of repeal have been waiting for. They surely will not miss their chance tomorrow.

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT

The people of the State are fortunate in the character and quality of these men who seek election to Congress on the Democratic platform. They are Thomas J. Cassidy, Cheshire, District 1; Wm. J. Granfield, Longmeadow, District 2; M. Fred O'Connell, Fitchburg, District 3; John J. Walsh, Worcester, District 4; James J. Bruin, Lowell, District 5; James D. Burns, Salem, District 6;

Wm. P. Connerly, Jr., Lynn, District 7; Arthur D. Healey, Somerville, District 8; Frederick S. Dietrick, Cambridge, District 9; John J. Crehan, Brighton, District 10; John W. McCormack, Dorchester, District 12; Edward G. Morris, Quincy, District 13; Andrew J. McGraw, Taunton, District 14; Thomas H. Buckley, Abington, District 15.

THE citizens are fortunate again in having in their service and again at their call so able an administrator as Governor Ely. He has already proven himself times without number as the man to guide the State through its many problems. Not to retain him this coming two years is unthinkable. That the thinking men and women of the Republican party have joined with every element in his own party in supporting him is added proof of his standing and ability. His victory should and will be decisive. Roosevelt and Ely is a combination which augurs well for the State and for the Nation.

THE election of a governor is next in importance to the election on the same day of a new President and Vice-President and a new Congress.

Under the American system of government, the governor of a state stands in much the same relationship to the people of his state that the President does to the people of the United States.

Just as there is no substitute under the American system of government for the leadership of the President in national affairs, so there is no substitute for the leadership of the governor in state affairs.

By electing another Roosevelt President the American people will assure themselves for the next four years of the leadership of action in national affairs.

ONLY by the election of a progressive governor such as Governor Ely can the people of Massachusetts assure themselves of the leadership of action in state affairs.

These are no ordinary times. This depression is a challenge to leadership not only in the federal city, but also in the capital city of every state in the Union.

To relieve unemployment by providing employment, and to revive agriculture, commerce and labor by reducing governmental waste and modernizing our entire system of taxation, the new Roosevelt administration at Washington must have the whole-hearted co-operation of progressive governors throughout the Union.

Massachusetts and every one of the thirty-three other states in which a governor will be elected tomorrow can assure the new Roosevelt administration at Washington of this co-operation by raising up in state affairs the leadership of action that only a strong and progressive governor such as Governor Ely can provide.

Odds on Roosevelt Climb

"Never bet" is good advice, whether it is on a horse or a Presidential candidate. That is the only sure way to MAKE money.

However, betting odds are a straw showing which way the wind blows, particularly in a Presidential campaign. And if this straw means anything it means the certain election of Roosevelt and Garner tomorrow.

Previous odds in Wall Street on Mr. Roosevelt have been 2 to 1. They are now 5 to 1. A recent bet was placed for a Chicago man at 16 to 5, the sum wagered being $48,000 to $13,000. In these days that is money mentioning.

One commission house has $300,000 to place on Roosevelt at 3 to 1. Large amounts also are offered at 2 to 1 that he will carry New York State, and even money that he will carry it by 200,000 or more.

Equally striking odds are offered on Roosevelt in other States. Some of these are:

Two and a half to one that he wins California; $100,000 offered.
Even, that he wins California by 175,000.
Even, that he carries Illinois by 150,000.
Six to five, that he carries Ohio.
Even, that you can't name night States that Hoover will carry.

In the opinion of the gambling fraternity, as of most others, this is a Democratic year. And the gamblers ought to know, for a lot of them will be in the headlines if they have guessed wrong.

Back to the Farm

It used to be the farmer boy who went to the city to make good.

Now, apparently, it is the city boy who goes to the country to make good.

The farm population of the United States, at all events, will be approximately 32,000,000 by the end of this year. This is the highest point it has reached since 1916, when it was 32,077,000.

Last year the farm population increased by more than half a million.

In the first three months of this year it increased another quarter of a million.

No doubt hard times have been largely responsible for the change.

A farmer may be bankrupt and still have something to eat, a house to sleep in, and a job.

A dervish and outcast in the city has none of these.

Give the average man his choice of the two evils and he will take the country every time.

O. O. McIntyre -:- New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Peppy

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Diary of a modern Peppy: Early up and to my mail, finding scarlet autumn greetings from Lois Josephine, Frazer and Bob Hunt and an autographed copy of Ruth Kaufman's new book from Geneva. So at my morning ablutions and then prepared a fresh draught of my vows against the new year.

With my wife to a dressmaker, and tried to read "The Life of Emerson" but, Heaven forbid! found myself glancing at monkeys all the while. Later to Riverside to the Spruille Bradens, and the Ted Woodwards there and Bill Hamilton. And I came upon the shyest dog ever I beheld.

To dinner with Mary Louise and Otto Carmichael from Munich. And the Roy Howards came. Also Joe Moore, Lee O'Neill, Isabel Leighton and Ralph Hays, all merry. And on my home, a lady with movie star eyelashes came from a doorway. "Lo, a peppy!" So I asked, I lay awake the night.

On a wretched stretch of upper Fifth avenue today, four enormous vans were removing what must have been expensive lodges—tapestries, Chippendale, Sheraton, and a sprinkling of Picasso and Modigliani. Doubtless the disarray on the sidewalk and under heavy guard had been combed from all parts of the world. Yet it looked tragic. There is no way to make a moving aristocratic.

The times, perhaps a spirit of adventure, but anyway, this is a season flowering stage debuts. Appearing currently are three buds from a recent crop—Elizabeth Young, Betty Gilette and June Blossom. The debbies trail to the footlights.

Remarks to me, with look profound. "Twas good to be with three such men!" I know he's lost another game.

And when a golfer homeward bound Remarks to me, with look profound. "Twas good to be with three such men!" I know he's lost another game.

So when the students' football dream Is shattered by the rival team They tell, emerging from the stand: "Well, anyhow we've got a band!"

by realization they are snugly with in the sacred fold.

Mention of the 400 still brings a thought of the lopsided Harry Lehr. He was most extravagantly publicized. No one ever heard of Mrs. Lehr entertaining. Yet she, with her Medusa-like curls, was the most gracious hostess of all. But Harry got the notices.

It's a nimble leap from the social swim to James in the cotton, but just this minute I received a card from Cabins Grouch, a South Carolina columnist, who reports business improved down yonder. The local store just sold a whole plug of Brown Mule. For the past three years they have been selling it by the "chaw."

Personal nomination for the most beautiful New York girl with wealth and social position—Doris Duke. As first nighters debouched under a marquee the other evening, there was a furious swirl around a figure which proved to be Edward G. Robinson. They sought his autograph, and some, in frenzy of hero worship, reached to touch him. Along the curb were two famous stage stars, still young but in the corona of eclipses. I wondered if Robinson recalled that, quite inconspicuously, he was in the supporting cast of one of them a few years ago. It was heartening that his greeting for her had the grace of humility. And it doesn't seem out of place here to add, Robinson has become one of the very finest actors of our time.

Robinson made the gangster glamorous, but, at the same time, stressed his evil finish. That is acting. In Manhattan thickets and underbrush, I have met "Bat 'Em Up" Jack McMann, Monk Eastman, Big Jack Zelig, Kid Twist and others. None was glamorous. I felt I take off suddenly at your touch on the shoulder, it means nothing. I've been flying that way for years.

After every paragraph like that there's usually a telephone call fraught with menace, inquiring: "Listen, smart guy, you're going to talk out of turn once too often!" But it doesn't frighten me. And if I take off suddenly at your touch on the shoulder, it means nothing. I've been flying that way for years.

Comfort

"Let something good be said!" a sage Of some almost forgotten age, Ke doubt it laid a moment dark, Let fall that very apt remark.

Now when a golfer coming in Says with a brave but foolish grin, "The trees with heavily were aflame!" I know he's lost another game.

And when a golfer homeward bound Remarks to me, with look profound, "Twas good to be with three such men!" I know he's lost another game.

So when the students' football dream Is shattered by the rival team They tell, emerging from the stand: "Well, anyhow we've got a band!"

"We lost the game! But what of that Didst see our tall drum major's hat? At playing splendidly college airs We have a band excellently theirs!"

Ants and Anthropology

Every so often a scientist arises to remark that man will one day disappear with the rest of the higher organisms and insect life will inherit the earth. Except for Nature's mutually destructive and protective devices, we are told, the offspring of a single pair of bugs would in some ruthlessly brief time drive out all other forms of animal life. But should Nature's balance fail—

Not long ago scientists abroad were telling us that the teeming anthills would send forth the insects to be man's conquerors. However, science itself now reassures us on this point. As Pasadena Prof. Julian Huxley, grandson of Darwin's greatest exponent, had this to say:

"In the first place it would take 100,000,000 ants to equal the fighting weight of an average-sized man."

"The size of an ant's brain appears a true index to its efficiency. Ants cannot hand down facts from one generation to the next, but are completely 'fired down' by instinct."

"The ant has a serious handicap to world ascendancy in that the species reached its present development before the evolution of man started and now appears to be at a standstill."

Solomon's ancient advice is still good—Consider the ant, and be wise.

SATURDAY'S QUESTION
Does science support the belief in fatalism?

Answer: By Dr. Moore J. Aronson, Instructor of Philosophy. Fatalism is the belief that scientific determinism and fatalism are the same thing. This is not correct. It is altogether contrary to the scientific sequence of events. For the scientist every event follows necessarily and without exception from a preceding event.

According to the scientific way of some revolver in the ceiling, pulled the trigger, and it went off the way it should. This peculiar sequence of events illustrates fatalism. But, in truth, this mistaken belief hinges upon a misunderstanding of the meaning of the fatalism. Let me illustrate the doctrine of fatalism by means of an anecdote taken from a Russian novel. We all know that soldiers are very often fatalistic. Let me illustrate the doctrine of fatalism by means of an anecdote taken from a Russian novel. We all know that soldiers are very often fatalistic. According to the anecdote, a certain Capt. X expressed his conviction before a group of friends that the day of his death, nature predestined and that nothing would happen to him before that day.
